Beth yw canser?

Mae canser yn cychwyn yng nghelloedd ein corff. Mae celloedd yn flociau adeiladu bach sy'n llunio organau a meinwe ein corff. Fel arfer, mae'r celloedd hyn yn rhannu i greu celloedd newydd mewn ffordd sydd wedi ei rheoleiddio. Dyna sut mae ein cyrff yn tyfu, yn gwella ac yn trwsio'i hun. Weithiau, bydd hyn yn mynd o chwith ac mae'r gell yn dod yn annormal. Mae'r gell annormal yn dal i rannu a chreu mwy a mwy o gelloedd annormal. Mae'r celloedd hyn yn ffurio lwm a elwir yn diwmor.

Celloedd normal

Celloedd sy'n ffurio tiwmor

Nid yw pob lwm yn ganser. Ni all lwm nad yw'n ganser (anfalaen) ledaenu i unrhyw ran arall o'r corff. Gall lwm sydd yn ganser (malaen) dyfu i ardaloedd amgylchynol o'r corff.

Weithiau mae celloedd canser yn torri'n rhydd o'r canser cyntaf (y prif ganser) ac yn teithio trwy'r gwaed neu system lymffatig i rannau eraill o'r corff. Gelwir celloedd canser sy'n lledaenu a datblygu i diwmor rhywle arall yn y corff yn ganser eilaidd.

What is cancer?

Cancer starts in our body's cells. Cells are tiny building blocks that make up the organs and tissues of our body. Usually, these cells split (divide) to make new cells in a controlled way. This is how our bodies grow, heal and repair. Sometimes, this goes wrong and the cell becomes abnormal. The abnormal cell keeps dividing and making more and more abnormal cells. These cells form a lump called a tumour.

Normal cells

Cells forming a tumour

Not all lumps are cancer. A lump that is not cancer (benign) cannot spread to anywhere else in the body. A lump that is cancer (malignant) can grow into surrounding areas of the body.

Cancer cells sometimes break away from the first (primary) cancer and travel through the blood or lymphatic system to other parts of the body. Cancer cells that spread and develop into a tumour somewhere else in the body are called a secondary cancer.

What happens after diagnosis?

Your healthcare team should talk to you about your treatment options and about any support you might need. They will give you an idea of what your treatment will involve and when it can start. You may need to have some more tests or scans to find out more about the cancer.

Health and social care professionals you might meet

When you have cancer, you may meet lots of different health and social care professionals.

Key worker

You should have a key worker and be given their contact details. Your key worker is your main point of contact. They can answer your questions and tell you who can help with different things.

Hospital team (MDT)

At hospital, a multidisciplinary team (MDT) will manage your treatment and care. This is a group of health and social care professionals. The group might include some or all of these roles:

- Clinical nurse specialist (CNS) – a nurse who is an expert in a particular type of cancer. Your CNS might be your key worker (see above).
- Haematologist – a doctor who is an expert in diagnosing and treating blood disorders, including cancers that start in the blood.
- Oncologist – a doctor who is an expert in treating cancer.
- Palliative care doctors and nurses – experts in treating symptoms and making someone more comfortable when the cancer can't be cured.

- Radiographer (therapeutic) – an expert in giving radiotherapy.
- Radiologist – an expert in x-rays and scans.
- Surgeon – a doctor who is an expert in surgery and does operations.

There may be other people in the MDT depending on the type of cancer you have.

In your local area

There are other professionals who can help look after you while you're at home. They will be in contact with your hospital team. They include:

- GP – Your GP can help you manage symptoms and side effects and arrange for you to see any specialists if needed. They can arrange services to help you at home and talk to you about any treatment decisions you need to make.
- Community and district nurses – These nurses can visit you at home and give care and support to you and anyone looking after you. Your GP can contact them for you.
- Practice nurse – Some GP practices have nurses who work alongside the GP. A practice nurse might do things like take blood tests or put dressings on wounds.

Social services and voluntary organisations

If you need help at home, for example with washing, dressing, cleaning or shopping, speak to your GP or key worker. They may refer you to a social worker. A social worker can help with problems in the home to help someone live independently. There may also be other organisations in your area that could help.

The main cancer treatments

The aim of treatment is to cure the cancer, or to control it and relieve any symptoms.

The type of treatment you have will depend on the type of cancer and your situation. You may have more than one treatment. Cancer treatments can include:

- surgery – the cancer is removed in an operation
- chemotherapy – drugs are given to destroy cancer cells
- radiotherapy – high-energy x-rays are used to destroy cancer cells
- hormonal therapy – treatment changes the hormones in your body, which can slow down the cancer or stop it from growing
- targeted therapy (sometimes called biological therapy) – drugs are given that target the way cancer cells grow.

Clinical trials

You may be asked to take part in a clinical trial. Clinical trials test new treatments to see if they are more effective than current treatments. A trial might involve testing a new drug or testing a new way of giving treatment.

If there are any trials that you can take part in, your doctor will talk to you about them. You can choose not to take part in a trial.

Side effects

Cancer treatments can cause unwanted side effects. These can often be reduced and managed. Your healthcare team will give you advice. Most side effects gradually go away after treatment finishes.

Complementary therapies

There are other therapies that may help you feel better, such as meditation or relaxation. These therapies do not treat cancer. You should always tell your cancer doctor about any other therapies you want to use.

How treatment is planned

Your healthcare team, who are experts in your type of cancer, will plan your treatment. You may need to have tests to find out more about the cancer before treatment starts. When planning your treatment, the doctors will look at:

- the type of cancer you have
- the size of the cancer and whether it has spread
- your general health
- national treatment guidelines.

Your personal preferences are also important.

Make sure you understand the treatment options. Your doctor or nurse should answer any questions you have about the treatment, until you're happy that you understand everything. You will need to give permission (consent) for the doctors to give you the treatment.

It might help to take a relative or friend to appointments with you. They can help you remember what was said. It might also help to take a list of questions that you want to ask and take it to your appointment. You can write down the answers so you remember them.

Making decisions about treatment

There might be more than one possible treatment, so you might be asked to choose between them. You might find this difficult. Talk to your healthcare team to find out:

- what the different treatments will involve
- what the possible side effects of each treatment are
- what the possible advantages and disadvantages of each treatment are.

Your healthcare team will give you time to choose. They can also help you with the decision.

Talking to your healthcare team

Having cancer can be a worrying and confusing time. Talking to your healthcare team can help. Many people feel better and more in control when they know what is happening to them and why.

People often feel that hospital staff are too busy to answer their questions. But it's important for you to understand what's happening and how the cancer and its treatment might affect you. The staff are there to help you. They should make time for your questions. If you don't understand or speak English well, the hospital can arrange an interpreter for you.

You might find some questions difficult to ask your doctor or nurse, especially if they are about personal issues. But your healthcare team are there to help and they are used to answering these questions.

It is important that you understand what you are told. If you don't, ask the doctor or nurse to explain again.

Questions to ask your healthcare team

Here are some questions you may want to ask your healthcare team. They may not all be relevant for you.

- What does my diagnosis mean?
- How advanced is the cancer?
- What will my treatment involve?
- What are the benefits, risks and side effects of each treatment?
- How will the treatment affect my daily life?
- How effective will treatment be?
- Who can I talk to about how I'm feeling?

- Who can I speak to if I think of questions later?
- I have religious or spiritual wishes – will these be met?

Coping with cancer – where to get support

After a cancer diagnosis, some people become more aware of religious beliefs or spiritual feelings. People with a strong religious faith often find this very helpful. Other people may question their faith.

Some people find comfort in prayer or meditation. Many people find it helpful knowing that other people are praying for them.

You can talk to a chaplain, minister, priest, rabbi or other religious leader even if you're not sure about what you believe. Spiritual and religious leaders are used to helping, and you may find peace of mind.

Support for family, friends and carers

People close to you may also have difficult emotions at this time. Our cancer support specialists are here to help everyone affected by cancer, including your relatives and friends. They can call us on 0808 808 00 00. They can also talk to your healthcare team for support.

A carer is someone who gives unpaid support to a relative or friend with cancer who couldn't manage without this help. They might help with personal care, give emotional support or help with housework. If someone is helping to look after you, it's important they get support too.
