

WORK SUPPORT ROUTE GUIDE

ENGLAND

Research shows that patients have better outcomes at work if they receive support early on to consider how cancer and its treatment might affect their working lives.

Health and social care professionals play a key role in this. The guide is designed to help you having conversations about work with patients.

WE ARE MACMILLAN.
CANCER SUPPORT

HOW TO USE THIS TOOL

This tool has been developed for health and social care professionals, to help you have conversations about work with people living with cancer.

Talking about employment and benefits with your patients is important for their health and wellbeing. But we understand that work might not be your field of expertise.

We have created a series of questions to help you to give your patient the right support and information, whether they are in employment, out of work, or self-employed.

Start by asking your patient 'Which of these best describes your current employment status?'

The answer your patient gives will lead you to one of 3 sections opposite.

Once you're on the relevant page, follow the flow to guide your patient.

At the end, you can print a copy of 'Useful contact details' for your patient.

GETTING STARTED

'Which of these best describes your current employment status?'

WORK SUPPORT ROUTE GUIDE ENGLAND

In employment or on long-term sick leave

Work is good for health and well-being. This section will help you to support your patient to stay in work, or return to work after their cancer treatment.

Print out a copy of 'In employment or on long-term sick leave' and go through the questions with your patient. The answers your patient gives will lead you to the next question.

Follow the flow. Your patient will be signposted to the right information according to how they answer each question.

At the end, you can print a copy of 'Useful contact details' for your patient.

I. In employment or on long-term sick leave

Don't forget to print your patient a copy of the useful contact details sheet.

Once you're back at work, you might still have bad days. Don't face them alone. The Macmillan team is with you every step of the way. For information, help, or if you just want a chat, call the Macmillan Support Line on 0808 808 00 00. Monday to Friday, 9am–8pm. Or visit macmillan.org.uk

I. In employment or on long-term sick leave – Useful contact details England

Careers advice

National Careers Service can help you make an action plan with achievable targets to support you back to work. They have tools and resources you need to support your next career step.

Contact them on 0800 100 900, or go to nationalcareersservice.direct.gov.uk

Retirement

Find out more about early retirement, and what it means to you financially, by visiting moneyadvice.service.org.uk

Work advice

Access to work can help you if your health affects the way you do your job. They can give you and your employer advice and support with extra costs which may arise because of your needs, such as equipment you need at work or help with paying for travel costs.

Go to gov.uk/access-to-work
gov.uk/browse/working

You can find your Disability Employment Advisor (DEA) at your local Job Centre Plus. You can search for a job centre nearest to you at gov.uk/contact-jobcentre-plus

Macmillan

Macmillan Support Line.
Call 0808 808 00 00
Monday to Friday, 9am–8pm.
Our information and support centres are located all across the country. To find a centre near you, go to macmillan.org.uk/howwecanhelp

Speak to a Macmillan benefits adviser on 0808 808 00 00. If you'd prefer to speak to someone in person, find your nearest Macmillan benefits adviser at macmillan.org.uk/benefitsadvisers

For free Macmillan booklets on work and cancer, go to be.macmillan.org.uk.

If you know of any local services, please note them down below.

2.

WORK SUPPORT ROUTE GUIDE ENGLAND

Out of work

If your patient is out of work and needs support to go back to work, this route guide aims to support this decision.

Print out a copy of 'Out of work' and go through the questions with your patient. The answers your patient gives will lead you to the next question.

Follow the flow. Your patient will be signposted to the right information according to how they answer each question.

At the end, you can print a copy of 'Useful contact details' for your patient.

2. Out of work

Are you ready to start looking for work?

Same career

It might have been a while since you filled out an application form, or had an interview, and you might not know where to start. Your local Jobcentre Plus is there to guide you through the process. Once you've registered with them, you will be introduced to a personal adviser, who will support you to find a job. If you are entitled to claim Jobseeker's Allowance, your adviser can also help you fill out the forms.

You might also want to register with a few recruitment agencies. There are plenty on the high street, or you can find some of the bigger ones online.

Change career

If you want to change your career, talk to the careers advice service at the National Careers Service. They can offer you practical help with updating your CV, interview tips and where to find work.

Have you considered volunteering? For more information go to useful contacts in this section.

Are you worried about going back to work?

When you've had a cancer diagnosis, it can take a long time to feel like yourself again. You might still feel physically unwell. Or perhaps you feel fine, but lack the confidence to return to work.

Talk to a healthcare professional or an adviser at your local Macmillan cancer information centre. They can suggest ways to improve your confidence, such as counselling or a self-management programme.

Would you like to know more about financial support and benefits that you may be entitled to?

Your local Jobcentre Plus can put together a programme to help you gradually come off benefits and get back to work. You may be entitled to certain credits or benefits once you start work. These include Job Grants, tax credits and help with interview expenses.

You can also talk through it with one of Macmillan's benefits advisers, either face-to-face, online or over the phone.

Don't forget to print your patient a copy of the useful contact details sheet.

Once you're back at work, you might still have bad days. Don't face them alone. The Macmillan team is with you every step of the way. For information, help, or if you just want a chat, call the Macmillan Support Line on 0808 808 00 00. Monday to Friday, 9am–8pm. Or visit macmillan.org.uk

2. Out of work – Useful contact details England

Careers advice

National Careers Service can help you make an action plan with achievable targets to support you back to work. They have tools and resources you need to support your next career step.

Contact them on 0800 100 900, or go to nationalcareersservice.direct.gov.uk

Volunteering

Find a role that's right for you go to voluntaryworker.co.uk

Work advice

Access to work can help you if your health affects the way you do your job. They can give you and your employer advice and support with extra costs which may arise because of your needs, such as equipment you need at work or help with paying for travel costs.

Go to gov.uk/access-to-work
gov.uk/browse/working

You can find your Disability Employment Advisor (DEA) at your local Job Centre Plus. You can search for a job centre nearest to you at gov.uk/contact-jobcentre-plus

Financial support and benefits

Go to gov.uk/browse/benefits

Money advice service provide unbiased money advice to help people make informed choices such as mortgage payments, loans, insurance or debt management moneyadvice.service.org.uk

Macmillan

Macmillan Support Line.
Call 0808 808 00 00
Monday to Friday, 9am–8pm.
Our information and support centres are located all across the country. To find a centre near you, go to macmillan.org.uk/howwecanhelp

Speak to a Macmillan benefits adviser on 0808 808 00 00.
If you'd prefer to speak to someone in person, find your nearest Macmillan benefits adviser at macmillan.org.uk/benefitsadvisers

Or find us online at macmillan.org.uk/financialissues.

For free Macmillan booklets on work and cancer, go to be.macmillan.org.uk.

If you know of any local services, please note them down below.

NOTES...

3.

WORK SUPPORT ROUTE GUIDE ENGLAND

Self-employed

There is a great sense of achievement and satisfaction being self-employed. Your patient maybe concerned that having cancer could lead to starting over again or closing down the business. This route guide can help to discuss options to stay self employed or think about other options.

Print out a copy of 'Self-employed' and go through the questions with your patient. The answers your patient gives will lead you to the next question.

Follow the flow. Your patient will be signposted to the right information according to how they answer each question.

At the end, you can print a copy of 'Useful contact details' for your patient.

3. Self-employed

Do you want to stay self-employed?

It may be difficult to juggle your self-employment during or after treatment and this can put pressure on you. Cancer self-management programmes or rehabilitation services, such as physiotherapy or occupational therapy, may help you to cope.

Macmillan's booklet Self-employment and cancer has lots of advice about managing your workload, and your finances. You can order it from be.macmillan, or call the Macmillan Support Line.

If you employ other people the Macmillan work and cancer online tool can also provide valuable information.

Would you like advice on changing your career, volunteering, or early retirement?

Change career

If you want to change your career, talk to the careers advice service at National Careers Service. They can offer you practical help with updating your CV, interview tips and where to find work.

Volunteering

Volunteering offers a chance to learn new skills, get active or gain experience to add to your CV. For more information contact Voluntary worker.

Retirement

Find out more about early retirement, and what it means to you financially, by visiting the Money Advice Service. You can also speak to an independent financial adviser.

Would you like to know more about financial support and benefits that you may be entitled to?

Get in touch with Macmillan's benefits advisers, either face-to-face, or over the phone, or find them online.

If cancer affects the way you do your job, you could get advice and support through a government scheme called Access to Work. You can apply for Access to Work funding if you are self-employed, or you can have a chat with the Disability Employment Adviser (DEA) at your local Jobcentre Plus. Another useful website is Businesslink, where you can find professional and financial help. For information on mortgage payments, loans and insurance take a look at our useful contacts list at the end of this section. If you have a personal insurance policy, you should also contact your insurers. You may be able to make a claim to support yourself while you get back to work.

Don't forget to print your patient a copy of the useful contact details sheet.

Once you're back at work, you might still have bad days. Don't face them alone. The Macmillan team is with you every step of the way. For information, help, or if you just want a chat, call the Macmillan Support Line on 0808 808 00 00. Monday to Friday, 9am–8pm. Or visit macmillan.org.uk

3. Self-employed – Useful contact details England

Careers advice

National Careers Service can help you make an action plan with achievable targets to support you back to work. They have tools and resources you need to support your next career step.

Contact them on 0800 100 900, or go to nationalcareersservice.direct.gov.uk

Volunteering

Find a role that's right for you go to voluntaryworker.co.uk

Work advice

Access to work can help you if your health affects the way you do your job. They can give you and your employer advice and support with extra costs which may arise because of your needs, such as equipment you need at work or help with paying for travel costs.

Go to gov.uk/access-to-work
gov.uk/browse/working

You can find your Disability Employment Advisor (DEA) at your local Job Centre Plus. You can search for a job centre nearest to you at gov.uk/contact-jobcentre-plus

Financial support and benefits

Go to gov.uk/browse/benefits

Money advice service provide unbiased money advice to help people make informed choices such as mortgage payments, loans, insurance or debt management moneyadvice.service.org.uk

Businesslink provide professional and financial advice go to gov.uk/browse/business

Macmillan

Macmillan Support Line.
Call 0808 808 00 00
Monday to Friday, 9am–8pm.
Our information and support centres are located all across the country.
To find a centre near you, go to macmillan.org.uk/howwecanhelp

Speak to a Macmillan benefits adviser on 0808 808 00 00. If you'd prefer to speak to someone in person, find your nearest Macmillan benefits adviser at macmillan.org.uk/benefitsadvisers

Or find us online at macmillan.org.uk/financialissues.

Macmillan work and cancer online tool. Go to macmillan.org.uk/employertool

For free Macmillan booklets on work and cancer, go to be.macmillan.org.uk.

We have a booklet called Self-employed and cancer which you may find useful.

If you know of any local services, please note them down below.

