

GIVE YOUR TIME

WE ARE MACMILLAN.
CANCER SUPPORT

'No matter what your interests or passions are, there is bound to be something for you if you want to volunteer with Macmillan.'

Katie, Volunteer

Volunteers – we love them

At Macmillan we couldn't do what we do without the amazing work of our volunteers.

There are lots of different ways in which you and your team mates can volunteer to use your time, energy and experience to help support people affected by cancer.

You could join one of our local fundraising groups or you can even start one of your own. Perhaps you fancy rolling up your sleeves and giving someone with cancer a hand with gardening, shopping or lifts to the hospital, or maybe you can help us push for better cancer care by getting involved in our campaigning activity. There are even opportunities for those with cancer experiences of their own to share their story with others be it online, in the media, in schools or in person.

However you and your colleagues choose to get involved, you will be inspiring others and helping us to make sure no one faces cancer alone.
