Claiming benefits when you have cancer

About this easy read booklet

This booklet is about claiming benefits when you have cancer.

You can learn about what benefits are and the different types of benefits.

If you are worried about your health, you should talk to a doctor or nurse.

What are benefits?

Benefits are extra money some people get from the government.

This money is for people who need help with the cost of living.

If you have cancer, you might be able to get benefits because you are ill.

You might also be able to get benefits if:

- you have a disability

- you do not earn much money

- you are looking after someone.

There are lots of different benefits. This book will explain some of them.

If you were not born in the UK

You may not be able to get some benefits if:

- you have come from another country to live or work in the UK

- you are seeking asylum.

The rules can be hard to understand. Our Money Advisers can give you some advice.

If you need help to care for yourself and move around

Personal Independence Payment (PIP) is for people aged 16 to 64 who live in England, Wales or Northern Ireland.

If you live in Scotland, this is called Adult Disability Payment (ADP).

It is for people who need help to move around, or need help to look after themselves.

State pension age is the age you can start getting your pension from the government.

Attendance Allowance is for people at or above state pension age who live in England, Wales or Northern Ireland.

Attendance Allowance is called Pension Age Disability Payment if you live in Scotland.

It is for people who find it hard to look after themselves. This is because they are ill.

Or because they have a disability.

You may be able to get benefits quicker if you are at the end of your life. These are called special rules.

Talk to your doctor or cancer team if you need help with this.

If you can not work or do not earn much money

Statutory sick pay is for people who are ill and can not work.

Your employer will pay this every week for up to 28 weeks.

Employment and Support Allowance is also for people who can not work. They may be ill or disabled.

You may be able to get this if you can only do a small amount of work.

If you do not earn much money or can not work, you may be able to get Universal Credit.

Universal Credit can include money for housing, basic living costs and looking after children.

If you look after someone with cancer

Carer's Allowance is for people who look after someone who needs lots of help, and live in England, Wales or Northern Ireland.

This is called Carer Support Payment if you live in Scotland.

16+

To get these benefits, you must:

- be 16 or over

- care for the person for at least 35 hours each week.

The person you care for does not have to be family.

You do not need to live with them.

You can still do some paid work and get this benefit.

Carer's Credit helps make sure you can still get a pension when you are older.

Carer's Credit does not give you any money. But it might help you in the future.

You must look after someone for at least 20 hours a week to get Carer's Credit.

If you need help with housing costs

If you get Universal Credit this can help pay your rent.

Housing Benefit could help you pay rent too. For example, if you live in supported, sheltered or temporary housing.

If you are of pension age

State Pension is money some people get from the government.

You can get a State Pension when you reach a certain age. You can find out your pension age at gov.uk

Pension Credit gives you extra money on top of your pension. It helps people who do not have much money.

What to do next

You might be able to get other help with money.
