SUPPORTING PEOPLE AT WORK

MACMILLAN AT WORK
Training. Support. Knowledge.

'We found the session very useful and worthwhile and hope to take a number of ideas forward.'

Rebecca, Employee Relations Consultant,
Spire Healthcare

We're in this together

By 2020, almost one in two of us will get cancer. That means you're likely to have to manage the impact of cancer in your workplace.

Macmillan's experience with people affected by cancer makes us ideally placed to help you. Our expertise is in workplace training, advice and support.

Join Macmillan at Work

Sign up to Macmillan at Work today to receive a free copy of our Essential work and cancer toolkit, which will introduce you to our excellent advice, guidance and everyday tips for you and your employees.

You'll also get access to further online resources and regular updates on work and cancer and other long term conditions via our newsletter.

What's more, you'll be able to book one of our specialist training and consultancy sessions, which cover topics such as making adjustments in the workplace, talking about cancer and supporting carers.

It's time to make your workplace as supportive as it can be for anyone touched by cancer.
